IOWANS BLAME WALL ST. FOR BONUS HOLD UP

Brookhart, "Radical" Candidate for Senate, Scores Big Business Profiteers.

By WILLIAM HARD. (Copyright, 1922, by Metropolitan News Service.)

OTTUMWA, Iowa, May 26.—Every one of the six Republican candidates for United States Senator from Iowa has declared himself in favor of the bonus. This ought to be a sufficient indication of the sentiment of the State. Iowa is a strong pro-soldier State and one of its grudge against "Wall Street" has been expressed to me over and over again by conservative as well as by radical in the following terms: "Wall Street profited enormously and shamefully out of the war."

"Wall Street then through the Federal Reserve bank system called in the loans which had been extended to the farmer and it thus deflated the farmer, and it did it suddenly and arbitrarily and mercilessly, and it speculated and profited on the decline of prices of farm products just as it previously had speculated and profited on their rise."

Wall Street now says that it cannot afford to pay adjusted compensation to our boys who went and risked their lives in France while Wall Street was sucking nothing and sucking excess profits out of everything at home."

There can be no doubt whatever that the tardiness shown in the matter of the bonus has greatly increased the number of Iowans who look with distrust at "big business" and who find themselves ready to cast a ballot in favor of such a candidate as Col. Smith Brookhart.

In spite of all his alleged "radicalism," the orgy of profiteering at the expense of the nation followed by this present spasm of economy at the expense of the soldier is one of the very considerable reasons why it is generally expected in Iowa that Col. Smith Brookhart with his fight on what he calls "the non-partisan league of Wall Street" will lead the poll in the Republican Senatorial primary on June 5.

I heard Brookhart speak last night. He is a farmer, and he looks it. He is a soldier and he looks it. He is one of the great American masters of rifle marksmanship and he looks it. When the American regular army in the course of the late war was obliged at last to turn to a new special increased interest in accurate training in accurate marksmanship, it turned to this Iowa farmer and gave him a special commission to introduce into the army the marksmanship methods which he had already introduced into the Iowa national guard. He talked to an audience as if he were on a rifle range.

He can stand stiller than any other speaker I ever saw. He has feet which plant themselves on the platform and just stay there. He has a thick firm body which holds itself perfectly motionless while his right arm slowly and steadily delivers an aim at the audience. He speaks in a low conversational tone which assumes that the audience will be quiet. He instructs the audience just as firmly and just as simply as if he were instructing a new squad of recruits in a training camp. He is an officer; a democratic and sympathetic officer; but an officer nevertheless who does not intend to have to raise his voice. He does not have to raise it. The audience stops shuffling its feet and stops dropping pine and listens intently. This man does not have to rant in order to lead. He is a most unusual combination of democracy and of authority.

As a specimen of his ideas it will be enough to mention what he said about the Federal Reserve Bank.

He said that the control of banks should be with the persons who provide the money with which the banks operate. He said that most of the money in banks and therefore in the Federal Reserve Bank comes, in fact from farmers and wage earners. He said that therefore, in fact, there was no reason why farmers and wage earners should not have even a majority of the representation even in the personnel of the Federal Reserve Board at Washington.

The Administration at Washington has a certain direct interest in the outcome of this fight in Iowa. The persons credited here with having done the thing which most has injured Brookhart's chances of success are Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Senator Cummins. They continue to be regarded as responsible for the efforts which induced Clifford Thorne, Brookhart's friend and fellow-townsmen, to go back on his friendship with Brookhart and to enter the Iowa Senatorial race, with the result that inevitably he will deprive Brookhart of a certain number of farmer votes and of a certain number of southeastern Iowa sectional votes. This is thought to be one more instance of Administration sympathy and support for local standpoint against local progressivism.

Chinese Demand U. S. Permit Liquor For Services

By International News Service. "Ng Ka Py," high-power alcoholic liquid, needed by Chinese in America for medicinal purposes, probably will be legalized.

This was the view expressed by Treasury officials today. Prohibition officials want to stop the import of the liquor, termed Chinese wine. They say it is used for beverage purposes.

Lawyers for the Chinese importers asserted, in a brief filed with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, that the liquor, of 48 per cent alcoholic content, is essential in Celestial religious rites. On that basis, the Chinese counsel may overturn a ruling of the Internal Revenue Bureau. They contend Americans are allowed sacramental wines. And why not the Chinese? they ask. Secretary Mellon today battled with the problem.

Peter Convery, of 1510 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, a tailor, after suffering for five years with biliousness and constipation, which resulted in a severe case of piles, was on the point of submitting to the surgeon's knife, when the advice of a neighboring druggist saved him this suffering and expense and restored him to health and strength by recommending that he use the Reese Formula R-11. A complete cure resulted and he tells of this wonderful tonic as follows:

"For five years I suffered with biliousness and constipation, which resulted in a serious case of piles. It was a very common thing for me to sit down and hold my head to either my knees, on account of terrific headaches and miserable spells of dizziness. Doctors and the medicines which they gave me did no good, and finally I was told that I would have to undergo an operation for piles."

"Just at this time my local druggist advised that I give Reese Formula R-11 a trial. I bought a bottle and after using it I noted a decided improvement. I kept on taking it and the third bottle completely cured me. I am now enjoying better health than ever before."

Reese Formula R-11 has relieved thousands of sufferers from constipation, kidney, liver and stomach disorders, rheumatism and general rundown condition. Buy a bottle today at Peoples Drug Store or any other drug store.

CHAS. R. CRANE INVOLVED WITH FRENCH POLICE

Chicago Millionaire Reported Facing 20-Year Jail Term For Part in Uprising.

By Universal Service. CHICAGO, May 26.—Charles R. Crane, Chicago millionaire and former American minister to China, who, according to dispatches from Cairo, Egypt, has been sentenced to twenty years in a French prison for inciting the recent uprising in the French mandated territory, expects to sail for America on June 3, according to his nephew, R. T. Crane, 23, today.

Mr. Crane said that his uncle was in Paris and had recently advised him of his plans to return to Chicago early next month. "We have heard nothing of his reported sentence," Mr. Crane declared today, "when shown dispatches stating that his uncle had been found guilty by a French military court in Damascus, Syria."

According to the Arabic newspapers, the United States Government has been advised of the minister's sentence. The reports in the Syrian newspapers, shown to Mr. Crane here, stated that his uncle was held guilty responsible with numerous Syrians who already have been sentenced to prison for participation in the outbreak.

Among the Syrians arrested, according to the dispatches shown Mr. Crane, is a fifteen-year-old pupil of Miss Nazid Abed, a Moslem teacher, who was one of the women selected by the American diplomat to be educated in the United States. It was Crane's check for

$1,000 to defray the girl's traveling expenses which prompted the French charge that the American Government was subsidizing the Syrian malcontents.

Miss Twisch Rahwandji, it is said, was recently arrested and questioned by the authorities in the hope of learning the whereabouts of her teacher, who escaped from prison.
